Reflections from the Project Leader

(Under Faculty Development for Enhanced Teaching, Learning and Research)
[Language & Social Sciences Stream]

Goals – what the project tried to accomplish and how it relates to the mission and vision of the institution:

- a) The project aimed to provide hands on training of research methodology to the faculty members.
- b) The teachers have been exposed to new ideas and knowledge domains.
- c) The gained knowledge will surely help the teachers in teaching and research and equip them to deal with academic challenges.

The project was carried out in 2 different phases:

Phase 1 – 7-day workshop on “Research Methodology in Humanities & Social Sciences: Contemporary Issues & Challenges”
26th April -- 2nd May 2017

Phase 2 -- Day-long seminar on “Notions of Tolerance in India: Diverse Perspectives”
23rd November 2017

The Workshop

The College organised a national workshop on the above theme for young college teachers and Phd scholars. There were 24 registered participants of which 7 were from Scottish Church College, Kolkata. The rest included participants from various colleges of West Bengal and 2 participants from Saint Joseph’s College, Nagaland.

Our purpose was to address the contemporary issues facing young scholars engaged in research, especially in humanities and social sciences.

As we felt, the question of methodology in today's academics is an intriguing one. There are many schools of thought regarding the importance, even relevance, of research methodology in these disciplines. The questions are many:

- Whether social science research should be merely empirical or theory-based.
- Whether ideational approaches are more significant and useful judging by the contributions of the polemicists.
- Whether inter-disciplinary or multi-disciplinary research should be privileged.
- Can there be a well-defined methodology in social science research
- How can one differentiate research methods from research methodology

And, the debate goes on.

We had invited Resource Persons from various professions and academic disciplines.

Each participant had to make a presentation on their area of interest which will soon be published in a collection of articles.

We are sure the workshop has been highly useful for the participants. There were interactive sessions everyday in which a lot of questions and observations were raised and related issues were addressed. In our state very few institutions have organised week-long workshop on such an intriguing subject as research methodology. That way our project has been extremely successful and we hope to do many more such workshops in future.

The Seminar

The theme of the seminar "Notions of Tolerance in India" was particularly appreciated by the speakers and the participants (the faculty of different colleges including ours) because we focused on diverse perspectives. One central question happened to be: has Indian society been truly tolerant? Is it right to extrapolate the Western paradigms of tolerance into our cultural context?

The speakers in the seminar included Sri Jawhar Sircar (retired IAS); Prof. Bhaskar Chakrabarty (Centenary Professor of History, University of Calcutta); Prof. Samir Kumar Das (Professor of Political Science, University of Calcutta); Prof. Sucheta Mahajan (Professor of History, Jawaharlal Nehru University, New Delhi) and Dr. Brinda Bose (Associate Professor of English Literature, Jawaharlal Nehru University, New Delhi).

Prof. Prasanta Ray (Professor of Sociology, Presidency University, Kolkata) and Prof. Himadri Banerjee (former Guru Nanak Professor of History, Jadavpur University, Kolkata) chaired the sessions.

The speakers discussed the notions of tolerance from various discourses. The theme being highly sensitive and relevant in today's India was problematised by the audience through their comments and critiques. Overall the seminar has been successful in that some new issues have been discussed and the challenges facing our country today have been highlighted.
